Abstract: The personality is related to a person, and it is up to us to raise a person maturely in all aspects. In order to see the perfect person in the future, we must start learning the future today. Everyone should take responsibility for this knowledge.

Key words: person, factor, biological, natural environment, future.

Who is the person? Who is eligible for the title? How strong are the factors influencing personality education? How can parents influence their child's personality?

As we search for answers to similar questions in quotation marks, we remember these wise words of Alisher Navoi: "It is necessary to educate a young child from a very young age. Education helps a person to develop good habits and qualities."

So, education can give a person a lot. His development over the years, making friends with good people and, of course, being worthy of the status of a perfect person at the level of a person are also born from the root of education.

Main part:

Who is the person?

A person refers to a person, a member of society who is psychologically developed, distinguished from others by his personal characteristics and behavior, and has a certain attitude and worldview. In order to become a person, a person must develop psychologically, feel himself as a whole person, and differ from others with his characteristics and qualities.

The concept of a person who embodies the personality-social-spiritual, moral essence. This concept is used in all social and humanitarian sciences from the point of view of its subject, on this basis it is interpreted differently. The transformation of biophysiological, social, spiritual, moral, aesthetic qualities and characteristics of a person into a whole is also covered by the system of relationships.

The formation of personality is related to the following factors:

- 1) biological (generation)
- 2) natural environment

- 3) cultural environment
- 4) social experience
- 5) relationship with people

These factors are formed over the years. During my practice, I realized that the child should be brought up with these factors, and if one factor is wrong, then the change in the child will turn into a negative formation.

A 3rd grader was born biologically healthy, but the environment has a huge impact on the child. This environment is unfortunately related to family. In the family there is a father, a mother and an only son. Father is unemployed, mother is a cook and she works from morning till night. The child stays at home with the father. A father does not understand today's advanced educational textbooks. So, no one can help the child's education at home.

The child spends 4-5 hours at school. He spends the remaining 19-20 hours at home. Obviously, more knowledge runs in the family. The child we are referring to is always lagging behind in school. The teacher expressed his displeasure to the father. It is a pity that the father could not bear these words and went home and beat the child. After such violence, the child is afraid of the father, unable to express his thoughts fully, and also unable to make friends with children.

I saw this again with the boy, he says a lot of bad words. When someone says that he learned it, he says that his father often uses these words at home. We see the future through these children. We build the future with our own hands in a beautiful upbringing. And the future should be full of beauty with perfect personalities.

I am very interested in these questions:

- Does the teacher know everything about the student's family environment?
- to what extent is it correct for the teacher to present the student to his father?
- how can a father and mother see the future of their child?
- when does the child become self-confident?

Summary:

Summarizing these questions, I came to this conclusion. If a teacher loves his profession, he loves children too. A teacher who loves children is able to discover wonderful methods, games, seminars, and roundtable discussions. Why are these necessary? Of course, to work with parents of children. The reason is that there are such families, before educating their children, it is necessary to educate their parents. Any child's future is served by a parent who has common sense.

The teacher should be just friends with this child. When everyone in the world is just a teacher, that child can relate to other people. And having the right relationship with people brings a sign of trust.

In this way we are building a dwarf personality. We must get answers to the questions that torment us in our own experience. The most important thing is to be kind to our profession and educate perfect individuals for the future. After all, a good name will remain after us only through this.
